			12/15/1999	Met with Dr. He said that Oxycontin is the drug he uses most often. He said he likes the fact that it is not morphine, and that makes it easier for the patient to accept. I also told him that we see fewer side effects. He said he is starting pts. on it sooner than he would MS Contin.
			3/13/2000	oxycontin has less abuse potential, addicts do not like it. Going to oxycontin after NSAIDS. Caldwell reprint for OA and said some of the older patients have to be careful with titrating up because of becoming lethargic. Using MS Contin for cancer patients, end stage, leaving oxycontin. Patients psychologically feel morphine controls the pain better. Bone pain uses morphine.

PPLPMDL0080000001	Parma	OH	44129	discussed oxy vs kadian i think i sold ortega onthat kadian is not recommended opost op for it has a 3-4 hours onset of action whereas the shorter onset of action of oxy and the cleaner s/e profile and the fact that the pi on kadian states can be bid and the morphine stigma dn to avoid poly pharamcyng the pt since there is not a short acting morphine sulfate therefore you must mix it with a short acting combo product?
			3/8/2001	doc thinks purdue is getting what they deserve with bad press. thinks it has no place in acute pain treatment (less than 2 weeks). thinks that by selling this way, we have encourage docs who know nothing about pain meds to write and create all these problems (keeping pts on same dose even as pain diminishes, pts get snowed) he said that pts are "dying" by being on too high of a dose of oxy, 40MG's!
